HISTORICAL

RELATION TO THE STATE.

Historically, Centenary College has a relation to the early educational work of the State of Louisiana.

In 1825 a charter was granted to the College of Louisiana, to be established in the town of Jackson, East Feliciana Parish. This institution was virtually the successor of the College of Orleans, which had been founded in 1805, and had not been successful, owing, in part, to the difficulty in adjusting instruction between English and French speaking populations.

The College of Louisiana was operated by the state in Jackson from 1825 to 1845. As in the case of the College of Orleans, it did not at any time measure up to what had been expected of it. None of the institutions fostered by the State in the early part of the century proved very successful.

In 1845 the property came into the hands of the Methodist church in the manner indicated subsequently, and from this date was known as the Centenary College of Louisiana.

The alumni of the College of Louisiana, twenty-four in number, were adopted by Centenary College, and have always headed the roll in the college catalogue. (See list).

Under the patronage of the Methodist church in Mississippi and Louisiana, the college soon entered upon a brilliant era in the educational history of Louisiana. In 1852 Hon. Charles Gayarre, famous Louisiana historian, addressed seven graduates, including so distinguished a man as Hon. Charles Spencer, the noted orator, and used the following language. "No longer shall it be said that all seminaries of learning in Louisiana are doomed to premature decay, like those plants whose growth is attempted to be forced in a soil uncongenial to their nature. The success of this institution, which now may be said to have stood the test of time, is a victorious answer to the sneers of detraction."

ORIGIN IN MISSISSIPPI.

The history of Centenary College as an institution of the Methodist church goes back to 1839, the one hundredth year after the organization of the first Methodist society in England by John Wesley, when centenary offerings were taken for Christian education.

The first meeting of the trustees was in Clinton, Miss., where certain buildings known as the Mississippi College, together with other inducements, were offered. It would seem to have been the logical thing for the college to be located in Clinton, but the committee, in considering a number of offers, located it at Brandon, Miss.

REMOVAL TO JACKSON, LA.

The location at Brandon proved unfortunate in every respect, and after several sessions it was moved in 1845 to Jackson, La., where it entered upon its bright career as the Centenary College of Louisiana, thus succeeding both the College of Louisiana and Centenary College in Mississippi.

By act of legislature in 1845, the College of Louisiana, in Jackson, was sold by the State to Judge Edward McGehee and others, who turned over the property to the board of trustees of Centenary College, appointed by the Mississippi Conference, which at that time included Louisiana. The College was immediately moved from Brandon, Miss. to Jackson, La. A very liberal charter was granted to the trustees, incorporated under the name of Centenary College of Louisiana, empowering them to confer such degrees as are usually granted by any university, college or seminary of learning in the United States.

This was the beginning of a brilliant period in the history of Centenary College. In 1857 a center building was erected at a cost of $60,000, containing a great audience hall, surmounted by a massive dome, supported by classic columns, as well as ample appointments for library, society halls, recitation rooms, etc.

During this period Centenary College was perhaps as well known an institution as existed anywhere in the south, and from its halls there went forth men of distinction in every walk of life, men renowned both in church and state.

(See Catalogue of Alumni).

A study of the old college register during the antebellum period shows that nearly every family of prominence in the public life of the state was represented.

The civil war proved a serious interruption to the splendid work of Centenary College. There were no graduates between 1861 and 1868. During the reconstruction time, when the whole south was financially crushed, the College had a struggle for its existence, and its salvation was almost entirely due to the personal work of Bishop Keener. He furnished a conveyance at his own expense, and canvassed a large part of Mississippi and Louisiana, securing about $20,000 to tide the College over the crisis. His name should never be forgotten in connection with the history of Centenary College. He was a trustee for forty-four years.

After Centenary passed successfully through the financial crisis of reconstruction days, it began again its great work, maintaining a place of commanding influence in both Louisiana and Mississippi.

In the year 1892, as the result of the benevolence of Major R. W. Millsaps, and the desire of the Mississippi Conference to have a college within its own territory, Millsaps College opened its doors in Jackson, Miss. With this loss of support and the changed conditions brought about by the advent of railroads, etc., it became increasingly evident from year to year that it would be impossible for the church in Louisiana to permanently maintain Centenary in Jackson, though excellent work was done there until the doors were closed in 1905.

The following presidents served from 1841 to 1905: Rev. T. C. Thornton, D. D., Judge David O. Shattuck, LL. D., Judge A. B. Longstreet, LL. D., Rev. R. H. Rivers, D. D., Rev. B. M. Drake, D. D., Rev. John C. Miller, Rev. W. H. Watkins, D. D., Rev. C. G. Andrews, D. D., Rev. D. M. Rush, Rev. T. A. S. Adams, D. D., Prof. Geo. H. Wiley, M. A., (protem), Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, D. D., Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., Rev. I. W. Cooper, D. D., Rev. H. B. Carre, Ph. D. and Rev. C. C. Miller.

REMOVAL TO SHREVEPORT.

In the year 1904 a definite proposition was made to the Louisiana Methodist Conference by the Shreveport Progressive League to move Centenary College to Shreveport, and a liberal bonus was offered. The Conference voted in approval of the proposition, but on account of legal obstacles, requested that the offer be held open for one year and appointed a commission of which Bishop H. C. Morrison was Chairman, to conduct negotiations with the City of Shreveport.

The Conference commission, early in 1905, visited Shreveport and closed with the liberal offer made by its citizens. The following December the Conference accepted the report of the commission and continued it with full power to execute the plan. The commission proceeded to organize in March, 1906, by appointing an executive committee composed of Dr. W. E. Boggs and Rev. Briscoe Carter, together with an advisory board consisting of Dr. J. P. Scott, Messrs. J. J. Booth, J. B. Hutchinson, P. M. Welsh, W. B. Glassell, J. B. Ardis and J. H. Jordan, with instructions to select a site for the college. In October it was unanimously decided to accept the magnificent offer of forty acres of lands in Gladstone Heights, made by Mr. J. W. Atkins. This location is most beautiful and offers everything in the way of natural advantages for the future development of the college.

In a short time the first college building was begun and opened its doors in the fall of 1908. The first president of the institution in Shreveport was Dr. W. L. Weber of Georgia. Under this polished, well-equipped Christian educator, the school was making gratifying progress until before the close of the second session, he was attacked by disease, which finally proved fatal. His successor was Dr. Felix R. Hill who took charge during the enforced absence of President Weber, when conditions were somewhat chaotic, served the church successfully during this critical period and remained in this position during the three following sessions when under the pressure of advancing years, he presented his resignation. He left the school with the love of the entire student body, and the esteem in which he was held by the trustees secured for him the honorary title of President Emeritus. Dr. Hill passed away in April, 1918.

Rev. R. H. Wynn was elected to fill this vacancy, taking charge in June, 1913, and has presided over the school during five sessions.

Dating from the centenary year which gave the institution its name, it has had seventy-nine years of history; from its location in Shreveport, twelve years.

In April, 1917, a civic campaign for endowment was made in the City of Shreveport which proved successful and guarantees the permanence of the institution.

SITE.

The site is within the city limits of one of the most progressive communities of the southwest, at the terminus of a convenient street car line, adjacent to a most desirable suburban residence section of Shreveport. Conservative estimates place the value of the forty-acre campus at one hundred thousand dollars.

Nature bestows the charm of natural beauty upon the surroundings, a large part of the campus being beautifully wooded and fronting an artificial lake.

HEALTH.

Health conditions are ideal. The college has had little or no serious illness since its opening.

DISCIPLINE.

The administration requires gentlemanly deportment on the part of all students. Rules are prescribed as far as necessary and are strictly enforced. Evidence of good character is required for admission.

Students in dormitory are not permitted to make visits to town except under prescribed regulations. All forms of hazing are forbidden. Cigarette smoking is prohibited.

CO-EDUCATION.

Young women who wish to enter Centenary are permitted to take the courses and allowed to graduate, no provision being made for their dormitory accommodation.

BOARDING ACCOMMODATIONS.

The dining hall and dormitory are under the college management. The members of the faculty board and room in the same building with the student body, thereby insuring good order and proper attention to health and comfort. The dormitory is steam-heated and supplied with shower baths.

PHYSICAL CULTURE.

The College has a large athletic park. The various kinds of athletic sports serve as a valuable means of physical and moral development and in promoting college spirit. There are dangers in connection with these activities and therefore careful supervision by the faculty is given.

Military instruction is given under the direction of a capable officer. The War Department furnishes rifles and equipment sufficient for the training of one hundred men. This new feature has proved a valuable means of discipline as well as physical education.

LITERARY SOCIETY.

The Union Literary Society with which the Franklin Institute has been temporarily merged, is seeking to maintain the prestige of former days. Essays, orations, debates and parliamentary drills engage the attention of the members. Each student is urged to join this society, the work of which is counted an important part of college education.

RELIGIOUS ACTIVITIES.

The religious activities of the school are organized in the Young Men's Christian Association. Regular exercises are held and a series of special services is conducted annually under the auspices of the Association. All students are urged to become members. Nearly all of the dormitory students are members of some church.

The students have rare opportunity for attending well organized and equipped churches of the various denominations in charge of pastors of piety and ability; they are required to attend public worship and are urged to attend Sunday School and other religious exercises.

PRIZES AND SCHOLARSHIPS.

The "Hutchinson Medal" is annually awarded to the successful contestant in declamation and the "Alumni Medal" to the successful contestant in oratory.

A limited number of free tuition scholarships will be offered to High School graduates entering Freshman Class for the session of 1918-19.

THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

The Alumni Association has a long and worthy record. The annual meeting is held each year during commencement when an oration is delivered, a poem read and a banquet served.

COURSES AND DEGREES.

Courses offered include the standard requirements of a college of Arts and Sciences.

Two baccalaureate degrees are conferred: Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science. When a student has completed one of the courses as prescribed and has fulfilled all of the requirements, he is eligible to the Bachelor Degree. A minimum residence of one year is required before any degree is granted.

The minimum amount of regularly required work is thirteen hours per week. If, for special reasons, a student is allowed to take less than this amount, he is designated as a "special." No student is permitted to take more than sixteen hours per week, except by permission of the faculty.

Two hours of laboratory work are counted as the equivalent of one hour of recitation or lecture work.
